

Honda Recall Voice Alert to Customer

NHTSA ID: 13V-092

Date: June 6, 2013

Honda recently mailed to you an important safety recall notice regarding your 2005 Pilot. This notice explains that your vehicles' Vehicle Stability Assist unit may have been damaged during manufacturing. A damaged VSA system may apply a small amount of braking force even if the driver has not pressed the brake pedal. If the driver applies the brakes during a malfunction, the VSA system may cause the vehicle to come to an abrupt stop, increasing the risk of crash. Our records indicate that your vehicle has not yet received the recall repair. Please make an appointment to have your vehicle repaired, free of charge, at any authorized Honda dealer. If you need help finding a dealer, or have not received the notice, please call 1-800-999-1009, and select option 4. Thank you.
